Today's featured article

The Eurasian nuthatch is a small passerine bird with a black eye-stripe. It is a vocal bird with a repeated note. Birds in Russia have whitish underparts, and those in the UK have more brown. It is found in woodland with large, old trees, preferably oak. It supplements its diet with nuts and seeds in autumn and winter, acting as a hoarder, storing food year-round. Its main natural enemy is the Common Buzzard. It is listed by the Union for Conservation of Nature as being of Least Concern.
